THE PEARL OF GREAT PRICE. It was an excellent reply of a friend of mine, said Mr. E. when he him took upon the leads of his house, to show him the extent of his possessions: waving his hand about, "There," says he, "that is my estate." Then pointing to a great distance on one side, "Dryou see that farm?" "Yes." 'Well that is mine." Pointing again to the other side. "Do you see that house?" "Yes." "That also belongs to me." Then said my friend. "Do you see that little village out yonder ?" " Yes." . Well, there lives a poor woman in that village, who can say can she say?" "Why, she can say, Christ is minc." He looked confounded, and said no more.
